

PENSIONS PROJECT MANAGEMENT

OVERVIEW

We provide a range of project management services to assist employers and trustees with the delivery of changes to pension arrangements. We are able to provide a complete project management service. Alternatively, we can work with a client's own project manager to provide additional support and guidance where needed.

Our project management service can be provided either on a stand alone basis or as part of a wider consultancy exercise.

PRINCE2

PRINCE2 is a widely recognised project management method that can be tailored for a wide range of projects and BWCI has a PRINCE2 Registered Practitioner.

PROJECT PLANNING AND SUPPORT

We are able to work as part of the project team to assist with specifying the scope of the project and the subsequent detailed planning process. We can also assist with the ongoing monitoring of the project's progress.

In addition, we can provide regular reports for the different levels of management within the project team structure.

IDENTIFICATION OF STAKEHOLDERS

An important feature of project management is the identification of all of the stakeholders. Through BWCI's experience of assisting a whole range of organisations with pensions projects in different jurisdictions, we can draw on our experience to ensure that all of the parties potentially affected by the project are identified at an early stage. Stakeholders are not only those who are directly affected, such as the employer, pension scheme trustees and the members, but in a pensions project they may also include regulators, unions and shareholders. All of these stakeholders need to be kept informed of progress.

RISK MANAGEMENT

Through our extensive practical experience of a range of pension projects, we can assist with the identification of risks to the project. We can then work with the project team to develop appropriate risk management strategies.

COMMUNICATION

A clear and well planned communication strategy is one of the key elements for a project to be successful. BWCI can assist with the development and execution of the communication management strategy.
